

Cant Park Store Lamb Indicator AvgWt 31.2kg	$3.36 (¢/kgLWT)
---	----------------------------

The expected increase in lamb numbers going through the yards as winter approaches was off to a good start today with over 1,500 store lambs and a big yarding of prime lambs. The store market was up and down with nearly all average indicator prices for weight ranges easing back, which in part was due to most lines being cross bred lambs. The average indicator price finished the day at $3.36/kg for an average weight of 31.2kgs, which was slightly easier than last week though is still over $1/kg better than last year's levels. This of course is all relative however, as schedule prices are streaks ahead of last year. The good sized yarding of prime lambs met strong demand and prices lifted on last week. Buyer's desperate to take their share home were digging deep in their pockets with the majority of lambs making $120 - 150/hd, while the top price was $168/hd. Prime ewe numbers are still struggling as ram's are out on farm and fewer than 1,000 were yarded today. Butchers ewes made $140 - 168/hd, while medium types returned $110 - 135/hd. Lighter ewes eased slightly as some see them as too longer term coming into winter.
